

BIRDLIFE INTERNATIONAL - JOB SPECIFICATION/DESCRIPTION

JOB TITLE:	MEL (Monitoring, Evaluation and Learning) Coordinator PIRP
DIVISION/DEPARTMENT:	Pacific Division

1. OVERALL PURPOSE OF JOB

The Island Restoration Programme is aiming to secure Pacific Island birds and other native biodiversity by addressing key threats. Of these, invasive alien species are responsible for most extinctions on islands and remain the leading cause of species decline and habitat degradation. Invasive species impacts are not limited to the natural environment profoundly effecting livelihoods (i.e., agriculture), ecosystem services, trade, infrastructure, human health, Pacific traditions, culture, gender equity, social inclusion, and climate resilience. In countering these issues the Pacific Island Restoration Programme (PIRP) is acting through a biodiversity led, multi-sectoral, Nature-based Solutions approach to addressing IAS and climate resilience, securing significant, sustainable outcomes for Pacific Island biodiversity, ecosystems, and people.

The Programme is delivered through a partnership approach, nationally by BirdLife Partners, or other organisations where there is no national presence. BirdLife Pacific, provides overall coordination and management, leads programme and project development, and provides technical support (with external expertise as necessary). On-ground action occurs at priority sites (primarily IBAs/KBAs) across the region and in doing so, develops local capacity to sustain the action, grow this capability nationally, and regionally through knowledge sharing, capacity, and policy development.

Assessing the Programme impact across all areas supported is essential to the cycle of identifying and integrating learning, success and programme development, this need extending to biodiversity, and associated socio-economic (livelihoods, culture and GESI), and capacity development results and outcomes. The Programmes Monitoring, Evaluation and Learning (MEL) will be guided through a regional Strategy (linked to the BirdLife 2023-2032 Global Strategy) managed and coordinated within the Region with technical expertise supporting the collection, analysis, and interpretation of indicator data, the development of (Programme partner) capacity, and inform the ongoing development and impact of the Regional Pacific Islands Programme.

The MEL Coordinator is responsible for the development and implementation of MEL across a diverse portfolio of biological and social indicators and national and regional projects, partners, and supporters. A key challenge will be to support the development of MEL systems and processes which are able to adequately manage the complexity and diversity of individual and local contexts, while still providing a measure of overall impact and learning at programme level.
